Aslı Narin's Exhibition "Carpe Noctem" is

Open 28 November 2018 at Milli Re Art Gallery

Born in İstanbul, Aslı Narin studied Visual Arts and Visual Communication Design at Sabancı University. She later received her MA degree from Goldsmiths, University of London.

Since her first solo exhibition, Aslı Narin has been in search of what is non-stable in nature and within herself. The artist states that through her photographs she endeavours to get outside of the everyday reality and keep the audience to get state as well. According to her, a camera is a collector. Besides collecting photographs from second-hand bookshops and flea markets, she also collects moments by taking photographs. "Carpe Noctem", which Aslı Narin has been developing specifically for Milli Re Art Gallery since 2016, presents her recent photographic series along with a series of found photographs. As expressed in the title of the exhibition, "Carpe Noctem" issues a call for making the best of the night. In the exhibition, we encounter the artist both as a protagonist of her photographs through her nightly walks on the streets, and also as an explorer who wants to discover the potential of the night to comprehend life.

Since then, she had two solo exhibitions in Kasa Gallery (2014, İstanbul, Turkey) and Oktem&Aykut Gallery (2015, İstanbul, Turkey). She has been participating at several group exhibitions, including After Yesterday, İstanbul Museum Photography Collection (İstanbul, Turkey, 2012), Acting In The Library, 1st Tbilisi Triennial-Offside Effect (Tbilisi, Georgia, 2012), İstanbul Modern-Bahrain, Bahrain National Museum, (Bahrain, 2013), Second Eye-Women Photographers from Turkey, Sismanoglu Megaro (İstanbul, Turkey, 2013), Reunion, Sakıp Sabancı Museum, (İstanbul, Turkey, 2015), Things that Count... Things That Don't, The Abrazo Interno Gallery (New York, USA, 2015) and The Photobook Exhibition, Athens Photo Festival, Benaki Museum (Athens, Greece, 2017). Currently, she teaches photography and visual communication design courses at Indiana University Herron School of Art and Design faculty, while pursuing her doctoral degree at Yıldız Technical University.

Rana Öztürk, the curator of Aslı Narin's "Carpe Noctem" exhibition at Milli Re Art Gallery, explains the framework of the exhibition as follows: "Carpe Noctem presents a journey starting with the overpassing of the threshold of the night, going through dark streets of the city and extending over to vast empty fields with no settlement. Even though some of the places in the photographs look familiar to us, with her photographic technique the artist has made them stranger than they actually are and interchangeable. That is to say, streets of different cities get mixed up. By causing instant associations, they evoke the viewer's own experiences in dark streets, making time and place in the photographs ambiguous, boundless, and belonging to all.

With her photographs, many of which are taken on the streets, Narin pursues an idea that knowledge can only be obtained through aesthetic experience by forging a bond with the world through the obscurity of the night. Yet, this experience is not limited to the final image that will emerge as a result of the act of photographing. The artist attempts to experience a potentiality of existence that has not been noticed until then or a way of being that is beyond the limits of reason, which will emerge through the very act of walking in the streets in the ambiguous fluidity of the night."

In 2016, Narin was invited to artist residency programmes at Gümüşlük Academy and Greenpeace Rainbow Warrior ship. Her work has been included in Imago Mundi Liciano Bentton Collection. Currently, she teaches photography and visual communication design courses at Indiana University Herron School of Art and Design, while pursuing her doctoral degree at Yıldız Technical University.

Aslı Narin's "Carpe Noctem" exhibition can be visited between 28 November and 29 December 2018 at Milli Re Art Gallery.
